Hi Anni, how was your day? Baby, I miss you so bad❤️🥰🤗😘

As I said earlier, I am skipping exercise today to write this diary. The original plan was to only write a purely good, I guess you can say, heartwarming diary entry. However, something happened today, so I will write something not so romantic after what I originally wanted to say. It is about my mental health.

However, before I begin, I want to say who this diary entry I am comfortable to be shared with. It can be shared with your parents, your sister, maybe your brother, your friends who attended RIT & people we both know who attended RIT when we were both there, and RIT faculty members who taught or mentored me. I do not wish you to share it with anyone else.

Realistically speaking, there is nothing I can do to stop you from sharing this diary entry with people other than those I gave permission to. I would prefer you don't, but I can't stop you.

Hopefully, you did not share my GitHub link and were just sharing downloaded PDF files🙄.

Ok, that took longer than I thought it would. Let's dive into the topics I prepared for today❤️🥰🤗😘

Anni, I saved up money for buying an engagement/proposal ring ages ago, and I have set them aside just for this purpose. Basically, this money is off-limits to me until I feel like it will almost be the time for me to drop down to one knee and pop the ring. I know the whole engagement ring should cost one month of your salary thing started as a marketing campaign aimed at boosting sales, but I don't know if you care about it or not, so I did it anyway. In addition, the one-month salary calculation is not based on my current pay, but based on the salaries in the two offers from Lockheed Martin and the one offer from NSA, which is $92k/12 = $7666.67. You are my everything, and I want to give you the best thing I can, just like I try to give you the best side of me even when I am deeply depressed. If I get an offer that pays even more, I will redo the calculation and increase the budget🤪❤️.

Ok, this took way shorter than I thought it would. Maybe I am not in the right mood to write all of them? Well, let me move on to the next topic then.

Something happened at work today, and it brought up some stuff for me that I want to share with you. A coworker told me something at work, and even though they did not mean it, the way they framed it made me feel like they were accusing me of an error I did not make, and I did not handle it well at all. I already set up a meeting to apologize to them tomorrow, but I really wanted to talk to you about why I reacted the way I did, and I want you to know that it is not your fault.

Ever since Title IX, it has been the same trigger for me. If I feel like someone is accusing me of something I did not do, even though a lot of the time I am able to manage my emotions and react calmly, sometimes I overreact, especially when I am in a poor mental health state. You know I have been depressed, but I am even more so now. I am trying my best to act normal at work, but my mental health is really bad right now. For instance, I am having my CompTIA SecurityX(the CASP+ replacement) exam next Friday to renew all my CompTIA certificates. It is so bad that I can only stare at the screen and not do anything. I physically could not do anything. I started studying for the exam before my mental health basically went to the toilet, but I do not think I was prepared well enough before it happened. I guess I will just wing the exam next Friday.

I am not trying to accuse you of anything. We can not rewrite what happened in the past. I love you, I want to face the future with you, and I want to marry you. That is what is important to me. Therefore, I think it is also important for me to talk to you about it.

I took so long to write this diary because I spent a lot of time thinking about what else I should include, but now I realize this is probably all I should share for now.

Anni, I love you. Talk to me soon❤️🥰🤗😘