

I wish I were snuggling with you right now, but unfortunately I am not. Sad 😞😓❤️

So, one of my cousins is getting married.

She is going to bring her boyfriend to meet my grandma in person for the first time at the end of this month, and she did not let us know who her boyfriend is until late last year. They are going to register their marriage at the end of this year.

I think I mentioned our cultural difference in this regard before. Basically, in Chinese culture, people don't introduce the person they are dating to their extended family until right before they get engaged. This is because the kind of marriage proposal in a modern-day context did not exist in China, so introducing the person you are dating to your parents and extended family became the de facto engagement during China's post-arranged-marriage era.

I am not saying that you telling everybody about us is a bad thing. Your culture has its way of doing things, and my culture has its way of doing things, and I respect that. However, admittedly, it is kind of frustrating not knowing when you are going to talk to me or what your plan for our relationship is. Right now, I don't even know if you have a plan for our relationship. It would be really helpful to know your plan 😞😓❤️

That's all for today. I hope you will talk to me soon so we can end this chapter of our life with "happily ever after ❤️" and face the next chapter together. I love you ❤️😘😌😓