

I want to make something clear. I do not want to hear any complaints about my emotional stability or the difficulty of finding a job from people you told about us. The Cyber Security System Engineer offers from Lockheed Martin and the NSA were only my second and third full-time offers. My first full-time offer was from the team I interned at Lockheed Martin. That one did not even require a clearance and paid $92k/year, and I could start as early as May 2024 if you did not do Title IX, which made me lose that offer. If they are not willing to give me $184k straight to my bank account to remediate how much Title IX has impacted my life, I do not want to hear any complaint from them. I am not even including the bonus or stock options; I'm using $92k times 2. If they aren't willing to do that, I won't give their opinion any consideration.
